

Conference On

Man the Hunted: Sociality, Altruism and Well-Being

Saturday, March 14, 9:00am–12:00pm
Washington University in St. Louis, Lab Sci 300

Coordinators: Robert W. Sussman, Ph.D. Dept. of Anthropology
& C. Robert Cloninger, M.D. Dept. of Psychiatry

Open Panel and Discussion

1. Man the Hunted: How is the Negative Paradigm that man is a predator reflected in current research and social institutions?

- a. Overview (Robert Sussman – initial discussant)
- b. Paleontological Point of View (Bernard Wood – initial discussant)
- c. Primatological Point of View (Paul Garber – initial discussant)

Panelists: Fuentes, Kowalewski, MacKinnon, Pavelka, Pievani, Strier, Sussman

2. Implications of the Positive Paradigm that man is altruistic for theory and research in Anthropology and Psychiatry.

- a. Anthropology (Douglas Fry – initial discussant)
- b. Neuroendocrinology, Psychology (James Rilling – initial discussant)
- c. Psychiatry (Robert Cloninger – initial discussant)

Panelists: Ferguson, Goldschmidt, Kedia, Knaupf, Phillips-Conroy, Pollock, Snowdon

3. Translation of Theory Into Practice – What can we do for the community using the positive paradigm?

- a. Education (K.M. Cloninger – initial discussant)
- b. Healthcare (Juan Mezzich – initial discussant)
- c. Quality of Life (Helen Herrman – initial discussant)

Panelists: Chapman, C.R. Cloninger, Blazer, Goldschmidt, Hay, Kedia, Munsch